Strategies for Selling

Your HondaJet

Before you offer your beautiful HondaJet for sale, it is important to consider your specific needs and expectations for the sale, and discuss them with your broker. Not every aircraft sale is the same, and understanding your position will allow you and your broker to develop the best personalized strategy to sell your HondaJet. In order to develop your strategy you should consider both the current market conditions, as well as identify your own timeline and pricing expectations.

Your timeframe will be the primary factor in developing a strategy to sell your HondaJet. You should discuss and evaluate your timing requirements with your broker. A knowledgeable broker can provide you with current market conditions, and together you can develop a strategy that not only meets your specific needs, but is also realistic in the current pre-owned HondaJet market. Beware of Off-Market Deals

If you have made the decision to sell your HondaJet in today's unprecedented seller's market, you should rightfully expect to get top dollar for your airplane, and even in some cases more than you paid for it if you purchased your HondaJet right before to the market boom took off. However what you may not be aware of as a seller is, you are not the only one looking to profit in today's red hot market. Aircraft Brokers and Dealers are also attempting to capitalize in this market, and often times at your expense.

By now I am sure you have received multiple phone calls and emails from Brokers and Dealers offering not just their services to sell your airplane for you, but also telling you they have a buyer for it already, and offering you an off-market sale. However the reality is these Brokers are likely attempting to run their own back to back deal by convincing both you and a buyer to accept an off-market transaction. Read More...
